MRS. FISKE IN "THE QUEEN OF LIARS."

The weather last evening was unfortunate as well as disagreeable, doubly unfortunate because it prevented New Haven people from seeing one of the funniest dramatic efforts of the season, and it forced Mrs. Fiske to play to a small audience, although one that appreciated and applauded enthusiastically. Mrs. Fiske has returned to the stage after an absence of several years. During her retirement she has taken part in several semi-amateur productions, notably some Ibsen performances in New York, which served to show that her abilities were steadily developing and that she could, if she chose, claim a place in the first rank. Her return has been hailed, therefore, with great joy on the part of the critics, and she is bound to succeed with the fastidious few, even if because of such a gloomy play as the one given last night she may at first lack the easier popularity of the many. "The Queen of Liars" is the rather flamboyant title of a translation of "La Mentuse," the joint production of Alphonse Daudet and Leon Hennique. It is the story of a woman who has cleverly lied herself into the confidence of an aristocratic French family, and having won the love of the son, she resolves to play the game out. She is obliged to lie constantly and consistently until mendacity becomes a sort of passion with her and her falsities get the better of her intellect. The crisis comes with the return of the man whose mistress she had formerly been, and rather than face the anger and grief of the husband whom she truly loves she kills herself by taking poison. Mrs. Fiske has a fascinating personality and a facial technique, a flexible and pleasing voice and a beautifully expressive face. Her touch is light and dexterous, and the graceful movements of her lithe and supple figure accord with the agility of her temperament. Above all, she has personal magnetism, and gives impression of immense reserve force, which is always felt in the greatest actors. She has been called the American Duse by some and there is some resemblance because of the extreme naturalness and spontaneity of her methods, and also because of her conscientiousness, of which we had an admirable instance in her performance last night. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Fiske will play here again very soon, when the auspices will be more propitious. Her support was only fair. Frank Mills, who was excellent as "Ned," in "Sowing the Wind" was only fair as a priest. Mr. Mills has no doubt about it, but he should recognize that he has a type to portray which is a conventional necessity to French novels and plays, that of the ingenious young cure. He failed to emphasize this quality which would then contrast with the more sober demeanor of the play. James Neill, Albert Grau and Ida Waterman were competent in their roles.

Alexander Salvini will present "Hamlet" at the Hyperion to-morrow evening. While Salvini's performance is not heralded, by any means, as a new Hamlet, it is alluded to by those who have seen it as an unconventional one—a Hamlet that is lovable, human and intensely interesting. On Thanksgiving day at the matinee and evening he will be seen in "The Three Guardsmen." Dramatized, "The Three Guardsmen" is action intensified. Not a gap remains unfilled; not a word unsuited to the motive and result. The scene is laid in the French court at a time when kings were slaves to popes; when women were the merchandise of power; when honor was a thing of name to flash in the gleam of a rapier and be buried in the slime of deeds; when might was right, and infamy owned both; when treason crawled before him who paid its service highest. In this latter day, when war is not a matter of a despot's whim, when a subject's head is his own, provided he respects his fellow's, this page of chivalry comes as a moral lesson and an amusing satire. By the touch of Dumas' genius it becomes as wine to the blood, since it is life, long-bottled in the flagons of history.

Sale of seats is now open for all the performances. There is no better pantomimist living than Mlle. Jane May, who made her American debut recently at Daly's and whose appearance is awaited here with considerable interest. She is not only a devotee of her art, but she is a most charming and unique exponent. In talking upon the subject of pantomime she said recently to the writer: "Pantomime is far more interesting than ordinary acting."

"And requires, I suppose, a special gift."

"Certainly. There are many gifted actors and actresses who cannot play in dumb-show at all. Pantomime, to my thinking," added Mlle. May, smiling, "is a sixth sense; you either possess it or have it not."

"Then there may be wonderful pantomimists walking, all unknowing and unknown, in our midst?"

"No; for before attempting this branch of dramatic art the comedian ought to be a good all-round actor. You see, we learn our parts and actually speak them during rehearsal."

"And what was your own debut, mademoiselle?"

"I studied at the Conservatoire, but, owing to family considerations, had to leave rather sooner than is generally the case in order to earn my own living. Alexander Dumas fils had seen me acting and heard me recite at the Conservatoire, and so mentioned me to Pallieron, in whose Age Ingrat I made my debut."

Mlle. Jane May will be at the Hyperion on Friday evening next. Sale of seats opens Wednesday.

Cissy Fitzgerald will appear in "The

Most Women's Troubles

Best results when outdoor exercise can be had. Secure only the genuine imported article, which must have the signature of "EISNER & MENDELSON CO., AGTS., New York," on every package.

Foundling" on Saturday next. Winksome Cissy has achieved the most wonderful success, as a dancer, known to the stage. She appears as a music hall artist in the comedy. The company to present "The Foundling" here is under the direction of Charles Frohman, and comes after a run of nearly two hundred nights at Hoyt's theater, New York. The sale of seats opens Thursday.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Milton Aborn Opera company opened a week's engagement last evening to a good sized audience despite the weather. The opera selected for the opening night was Donnelly and Miller's nautical, farcical opera, "Shilo May." The opera is a dashing and buoyant one, and, besides, a thoroughly American production. The libretto and score are both of native creation. The opera is full of Yankee music, Yankee wit, humor and best suited to Yankee taste.

The company which Mr. Aborn has brought to this city is an excellent one. Mr. Aborn as Colonel Mapleson Mulberry has a part well suited to him, and as he is an old time favorite in this city he was accorded a warm reception. J. W. Smith is one of the best tenors that has been heard at this house in a long time and his solo in the third act was loudly applauded. Frank Woolley, a brother of Arthur Woolley, who has been here many times with the Baker Opera company, is one of the best comedians seen here in a long time. That he will make a great hit during the week is assured. Louis C. Fitzroy was also excellent. W. D. Lombard and J. E. Dewey also made good impressions and will be heard with pleasure during the week. Miss Maud D'Arcy is also an old favorite in New Haven, where she has been heard many times. Her work last night was proof that she is a star in comic opera. Miss Marie Bell has a very pleasing voice, which she uses with great credit. Her songs were all encores. Miss Sylvester Cornish is also deserving of special mention. She was repeatedly encores. Others who assisted to make the performance a success were R. Stanley, F. Roy, Miss Radcliffe and Miss Booth.

POLL'S WONDERLAND THEATER.

The new bill at Poll's Wonderland theater is an exceedingly good one and proved highly satisfactory to the immense audiences that were in attendance yesterday afternoon and evening. J. W. Kelly, "the rolling mill man," made an immensely successful debut in New Haven, and all who were there will admit that of all those who have appeared at the Wonderland he is easily the king comedian. His unique style of funny talk, lighting up every subject he touches with comedy flashes, is the wildest, cleverest and brightest monologue entertainment that any of the habitués of the Wonderland have ever had the pleasure of witnessing. The supporting company is a great one, too. Sirron and Simkin, the comic conjurers from Europe, keep every one laughing with their burlesque tricks of magic, while Miss Norma Willis and Montie Collins present a bright and clever travesty entitled "Galatea Up to Date." Others who help in making the bill a truly brilliant one are Bradley, Burke and Beam, the Misses Lawrence and Eastman, Frank Riley, Miss May Cook and the Brannigans. Two performances are given every afternoon, the same as in the evening, ladies being admitted for 10 cents to all parts of the house, and extra performances will be given on Thanksgiving day.

Dr. Cremin III, Dr. Cremin of New Britain was summoned to New Haven yesterday by telegram, as his brother, Dr. M. J. Cremin, was seriously ill. Last night the doctor was resting comfortably and it was thought that he would be able to be about again in a few days.
